Amfleet The new spirit of Amtrak

The gleaming new stainless steel Amfleet provides a distinctive spirit for Amtrak.

The 85-foot-long Amcoaches and Amcafe food service cars, built for Amtrak by The Budd Company, are designed for maximum passenger comfort at high operating speeds. Each car incorporates all federal railroad safety standards and is backed by proven Budd technology.

Car interiors are equipped with plushly upholstered reclining seats, individual tray tables, color-coordinated carpeting and shatter-proof, tinted windows. The cars also feature electric heating and air conditioning.

All cars of the Amfleet include sound facilities for taped music, train announcements and crew communications. Thermal and acoustical insulation provides an exceptionally quiet interior and minimizes the transfer of heat through the car body.

Each car is equipped with Budd Pioneer III trucks, a newly designed combination air and coil spring suspension system which provides improved riding quality. Disc brakes assure smooth, safe stopping capabilities.

Richly upholstered Amfleet seats are fully reclining and rotating, and have fold down tables and center arm rests.
